VACANCY NOTICE REQUEST

A vacancy notice will be created, using the following information.

A vacancy notice should not be as detailed as a job description and should not list every required task. The goal of the vacancy notice is to attract a diverse group of qualified candidates for the position. A vacancy notice that is too long and detailed will result in potential applicants losing focus, and oftentimes, interest in the position. In addition, a vacancy notice that is too detailed may discourage historically underrepresented individuals/groups from applying.

Identify no more than 5 core duties/responsibilities.

List 2-3 unique aspects of the working environment an employee in this position will encounter.

For example: High volume of difficult public interaction, constant deadlines with concurrent priorities, fieldwork in potentially unsafe conditions, etc.

List special certifications/licenses required at time of hire.

List certifications/licenses required within a specified period after employment.

Identify any other unique aspects of this position within your department/work unit.

Identify professional associations or other specialized sources for posting this position.

All costs associated with advertising are paid by the hiring department.

Provide 5 -7 Interview Questions
