Summary Description and rationale of project and funding sources:
This project integrates stormwater infrastructure and green infrastructure improvements into surface transportation projects to enhance water quality, manage runoff, and protect long-term infrastructure investments. Surface improvements like curbs, gutters, and roadways are more effective and durable when stormwater is properly managed through features such as biofiltration, permeable surfaces, or upgraded drainage. By planning for water quantity and quality alongside transportation improvements, the City can reduce maintenance costs, prevent flooding, and support healthier urban ecosystems.
History & Current Status: Impact if Cancelled or Delayed
Delaying this project would reduce the City's ability to coordinate stormwater improvements with planned surface transportation upgrades, leading to missed opportunities for efficiency and cost savings. Without integrated planning, stormwater issues may be addressed after-the-fact through costly retrofits, rather than as part of a more efficient, unified construction effort. This not only increases long-term maintenance expenses but also diminishes the return on investment for new road and sidewalk infrastructure. Timely implementation ensures better use of limited tax dollars, improves interdepartmental coordination, and maximizes the environmental and economic benefits of both transportation and stormwater systems.
